THE BUILDING CAMPAIGN

With the building campaign under full way, permits continue to issue at the city hall at a rate which confirms the early promise of a busy construction season lasting right through the summer. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent last year, but still there is a brick demand for houses to rent, while the market for houses of at least the smaller type has been steadily improving. The city's equipment of buildings, streets, etc., has been augmented, enlarged, but there are practically no empty stores. The erection of large office and business blocks is going on actively, while plans are announced for still more developments of all kinds.

The building that is being done is with a view to meeting a demand that is present, rather than prospective. The city has been growing in population is still growing, and at a fairly rapid rate. The economic conditions which have caused the growth are still operating. More land is being brought into use. New railway lines are being constructed. The seedling season has been most favorable. The country is generally prosperous. The conclusion is that the end of summer will see the building trades still busy trying to overtake the demand for new quarters in which to make homes or carry on businesses.

ALL MINISTERS ASKED TO CO-OPERATE

For a considerable time the Bulletin has been publishing each day at the head of this page a column from the Scriptures, selected by Dr. Frank McCoy, minister of one of the city churches. The aim has been that every minister of every denomination should co-operate, by selecting texts for such use. In sending our letters inviting this co-operation the last list of ministers was omitted. This omission has been adopted as the only list available. These letters have been sent out periodically, addressed to every clergyman whose address could be thus obtained. A large number of the ministers of the city have responded, and to them the thanks of the Bulletin and its readers are due.

To those who have neglected the matter, and to any who may have inadvertently overlooked an invitation is here repeated, and we trust them which they may think suitable for this purpose. The offer is open to every minister in charge of a city congregation to occupy the space allotted for the daily text. Their robes will be being adopted so that each denomination and each congregational unit may receive fair play. Any minister in charge of an Edmonton congregation will be a welcome contributor. We trust the church which selects and publishes the text which he selects and publishes, and the church to which he ministers will get the benefit of the publicity without any charge whatever.

BETTER MAKE IT A JOB

Paving operations have progressed far enough on 97th street to show what the completed work is going to be. The expedition is being tried of laying asphalt between the tracks and railroads, the paving to be done with wood blocks paving on either side. When completed there will be a strip of smooth pavement up the middle of the street, flanked on either side by wood block paving which is in places in an advanced stage of deterioration.

One thing is bound to result. All the traffic on the street will be on the car tracks; which is precisely where it is not wanted, where traffic will be most dangerous and confusing, and where ordinarily there should be the least. It is idle to suppose that automobiles and horse-drawn vehicles will bump along over the hills and hollows of the wood blocks while there is a level smooth surface in the middle of the street. And it is almost a good deal to think that, a driver proceeding at a leisurely pace on the asphalt strip will obligingly turn out onto the wood blocks, and then proceed to pass. Add to this the fact that street cars will be operating in both directions, also on the asphalt strip, and there will be present all the factors needed to produce unnecessary congestion and undue risk of accident.

One other fact is worth noting in this connection. The wood blocks will be useless in the matter of a few years. They will then have to be torn out, and the sides of the street paved. This means that the business firms along the street are to be subjected to interference for two summers instead of one, and that traffic will have to be diverted from the street for two seasons instead of one. At the end of the whole width of the street will have to be paved, the final cost being the same as though the work were done now.

It may be too late to change the plan to 97th street and lay the sides as well as the centre with asphalt. But it would be a mistake to carry out the same plan in the improvement of 101st street. The plan there and now is badly worn and leaves a gap along the sides of the street which would result in the same congestion of traffic in the centre.

The fact simply is that wood block paving is not practicable in Edmonton. The cost may as well be higher as less. When it is necessary to resurface a street where that kind of paving was laid, the better plan is to make a job of it, clear out the blocks altogether, and repave the whole width of the street.

A PUBLIC MENACE

Perhaps there is a meaner type of man than the hit-and-run driver, but it is hard to imagine by whom he would be established. In any case, it is not likely that any other claimant to the distinction carries on such a dangerous kind of outlawry under cover of a government permit. When one of these offenders is caught he should be held responsible for years, but for all time. A man who is known to be built that way ought never to be allowed to drive anything on the public highway that is so potentially dangerous as an automobile.

The Wild Flower

By EDGAR E. GUEST

Men cover the earth with brick and stone
But the violet still grows
The violet still grows, but little known
To be found by some one who walks alone
In the calm of a summer day.

As the ferns move out to distant spots
With the sunlight and shade
With trees and song birds they cast their lot,
So the violet grows, though the ceaseless tramp of feet.

The wild flowers sleep at man's buildings great
And the flowers from the city bloom.
They live and find and blossom, and wait
For the few friends who may come.

Youth and Tragedy
By DR. FRANK MC COY

Strangely enough, tragedy and youth seem to run together, and the young are often the victims of calamities and comedy.

The old, a man gets the more care to "see the young read novels with happy endings."

It is the young that want the whole dramatic picture.

They are older when the hero butchers 200 or 300 of his own men.

The same thing is observable in the literature of Sophocles.

One gentleman slays his father, another marries his mother by mistake and when he finds out he cuts off his own nose. He then kills his brother and a lady is put into a dungeon to die.

It is not so much as marrying and living happily ever after in fairy folk.

Reading the ancient ballads is a pretty lugubrious pastime. One finds the young in love, the young in pain, the young in trouble, the young in death, the young in hell.

Young people run to tragedy. You will find them in love, in pain, in trouble, the young in death, the young in hell. The hospitals are full, rainy days predominate and when it is over generally.

the Arctic again."

For Europe.

Mrs. Percy Page and her daughter, Miss Helen, are off to Europe, where Miss Page will take her music examinations at the Royal College of Music.

The Laird Miss Page will chaperone the Grand Assembly, and Ruth Elder will complete at the Olympic games.

In compliment to Miss Mary McLean, Ruth Elder says, "I am sure that Nona Elling will entertain at tea at her flat in the Westminster apartments on Leithbridge."

WHEN A GIRL LOVES

By RUTH DEWEY GROVES

As she turned the key her ears were assailed by voices coming from a connecting room.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
VIRGINIA DANE, sixteen, goes after the sudden death of her father after losing his fortune, goes to live with a girlhood friend, CLARISSA BEAN, who moves to the city despite of the objections of her fiancé, NATHANIEL DANE. Being unhappy in her new home, Virginia goes to see her mother, Mrs. Gardner, one night and is surprised when his model, CHILL, answers. This causes a quarrel which is later mended.

Hoping to get Niel away, Dean has a company he contrives offer him a him a position as a reporter in Denver. Niel goes to Virginia to marry him if he would stay to let him sacrifice his art study.

Clarissa becomes jealous of Niel, but Niel opposes her demands to return to her home. When she returns, he threatens to expose the fact that her father had cheated him. In despair, Niel leaves, leaving Virginia to earn the money to support him. She falls in love with her boy friend, but when he falls, she falls. Then she goes to him, but he has left. She says she must find a cheap place to live.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XIII

Virginia knew in a flash of anguish apprehension that she had sold out. She had broken her bargain with Mr. Gardner. She could not rob him of his power to create or go on with his work. She had been far beyond his reach as here, and if he were told that last of all, would he not be angry? But for both of them it would be an abrupt end.

And before morning Virginia knew to the full just how unhappy, dampened her heart. More surely than ever she realized that she had made a mistake. She might fall beneath the Jeagermaut of death, but she would not die. She would spare Nathaniel the crushing knowledge of what might come.

Six arose in the morning steaming with the heat of the sun. Virginia had a brief moment of relief as she heard the telephone ring. It was her boy friend, too. It drove her on to greater unhappiness.

By telephone she made an appointment with Mr. Gardner at his office, and went there. Her boy friend sat by his desk.

"I'm going to find out what my balance is," she replied unhesitatingly.

"Mr. Gardner went to the door without a word, and she saw the reason for her decision to refuse financial assistance.

"I no longer need you," he said. "Why should I live a lie? Am I born to be a failure? I know just that. There's only one honest thing I can do."

She added simply, "I'll leave."

And Virginia emitted an exclamation of pained surprise.

"You look too worn to have come out," he reproved her, and had some coffee and a few biscuits served to her by his maid.

"I don't care if I stay at my hotel," Virginia explained. Then she packed up her belongings. She left Mr. Dean's house and added simply, "I'll leave."

And Virginia emitted an exclamation of pained surprise.

Gardner instantly became very grave. "I'm afraid you are right," he sympathized.

"There hasn't been time for a settling out. You can't afford to pay me back for the loan," he offered, but not too warmly.

"Thank you, I will not borrow money until I know how I can pay it back. I have the strings of pearls; I can bettah bring them in."

Gardner instantly became very grave. "I'm afraid you are right," he sympathized.

"Those pearls were unpolished when I bought them," he said.

"I'll return them to settle the claim against me," he offered.

A little cry of distress like the dying of a drowning person escaped from Virginia's lips and brought a smile to the face of old Mr. Gardner's deliberately hardened heart.

BEAVER LODGE AND DISTRICT SPORTS HELD

Many Towns in Peace River Country Participate in Events

Exclusive to Bulletin

BEAVER LODGE, May 28.—The annual Beaver Lodge district sports were held yesterday at the local grounds to meet its requirements as a town of over 1,400.

For three years ago the motor car was a rare animal among the wagons and buggies.

"Great Britain is in Palestine to stay," said the British Legation, "and the date will only be withdrawn when the Jewish nation has established itself in the land of the British nation." Great Britain has been a factor in the Near East and as a guard to the Suez Canal since, in fact, the British had more than they need her," he asserted.

"Great Britain has won the crisis which Palestine had recently overcome in agriculture. Oranges produced on the British plantations sell at 50 per cent higher prices than those from other countries.

come in agriculture. Oranges produced on the British plantations sell at 50 per cent higher prices than those from other countries.

AT THE EMPRESS

"Sadie Thompson," Gloria Swanson's second independent United Artists production, was well received at the Empress theatre.

The picture is a drama of the

dramatic and most widely discussed

story of modern literature—the intersex life of a native woman.

"Sadie Thompson" is a added feature on the program. The picture is a drama of the

AT THE MONARCH

"Ten-twenty" used to refer to vaudeville and burlesque, but today it refers to the new United Artists pictures.

Picnickers in United Artists' pictures have made in two years, is based on life in a five-and-ten-cent store and one of the best comedies ever made.

The picture is a drama of the

dramatic and most widely discussed

story of modern literature—the inter-

sex life of a native woman.

AT THE DREAMLAND

From a standing start through pale windows to a joint meeting of the various boards of trade of the Grande Prairie, the Dreamland's new United Artists picture was held and resolutions were adopted.

"The Sunless Land" is a drama of the drama of the dreamer.

The horse cleared a barrier four feet high and ran straight in all directions.

The plan was to get the horse to run around the ring so that neither horse nor rider could be cut off.

AT THE PRINCESS

"High melodrama of the most thrilling sort," comes from the delicious comedy of "Sadie Thompson" which Raymond Hatton can provide and an "Oscar" for Gloria Swanson.

Prominent Jew Wants Palestine to Become New British Dominion

WINNIPEG, Man., May 28.—That the world would eventually become a seventh British dominion was the opinion of Dr. Abraham Berliner, Jewish leader, who opened the United Palestine appeal for western Canada.

"Great Britain is in Palestine to stay," said Berliner, "and the date will only be withdrawn when the Jewish nation has established itself in the land of the British nation." Great Britain has been a factor in the Near East and as a guard to the Suez Canal since, in fact, the British had more than they need her," he asserted.
